How About Your House?

You can walk along the street and "size people up" by the way they treat their windows. When you see huge bunches of artificial flowers between the lace curtains and the glass, for outsiders to enjoy, you may be sure the people are "showing off."

Closely drawn curtains and shades pulled down just so, suggest a too neat housekeeper with a dread of light and air, or a room too fine to use.

Rooms shouldn't be too fine to use. Here is a house with lace curtains at the parlor windows, ragged net ones at the bedrooms, and a basement where you know very well want to expect of the people behind the windows.

Then you come to a plain little shoe-box of a house, such a humble little house no one would think of looking to it for a lesson in decoration, and you find rear windows, shining and clean, with fresh white curtains hanging straight and full and green painted window boxes full of growing things, fastened to the ledges outside. You know the dwellers in the little house are nice people, and that they appreciate the privilege of windows.

—From "The Honest House," by Greenwood.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa.—"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache."

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Is Tulsa Too Liberal?

Tulsa, in the opinion of many people, has been too liberal in their charities and as a result the word has gone out that a beggar can live easily in Tulsa. And as a result they have all flocked here. The business men of the city have become tired of this and have determined to keep their money for the actual residents of the city who are in need and will appreciate the friendly hand when it is extended.

Just to show to what great lengths the county has gone in the past winter in taking care of the poor, it was stated yesterday that the county had, during the past fiscal year, which lacks two months of being ended, spent just $29,000 in taking care of the poor.

A large part of this money has gone to the hospitals to care for the sick and to buy groceries and food. By the middle of this month the county hospital will be ready for use and the county commissioners believe that they can cut down this expense by $1,000 per month.

German Express Anxiety.

AMSTERDAM, via London, May 6. The German papers are beginning to display anxiety regarding Italy's attitude. The Nassische Zeitung, the Lokal Anzeiger and the Tageblatt all emphasize the fact that the negotiations between Italy and Austria have not yet been definitely broken and that therefore there is justifiable hope of a satisfactory solution. They admit that the situation is serious, however, but at the same time insist that Italian intervention on the side with Germany's enemies would make no difference to German determination of confidence in the final result.

Quite Useless.

Pastor (from the pulpit)—The collection which we took up today is for the savages of Africa. The trousers buttons which some of the brethren have dropped in the plate are consequently useless.

Aggressive action by the city authorities, the county commissioners have taken to rid the city of Tulsa of the thousands of more squatters who have infested vacant property close to the heart of the city. A committee headed by Cyrus Avery, and including Frank Greer and Paul Galloway, was yesterday appointed by the commissioners to club directorate to act with the county commissioners in laying the matter before the city officials. The course will probably be to declare the squatters a nuisance and use the city police force to move them off.

The section of land near the pumping station and that part of the Children's estate lying close to the city cemetery have for a long time furnished the chief places where these indigent people have lived.

Breeders of Crime.

Recently the county commissioners with the Humane society conducted a quiet investigation of this condition and they came to the conclusion that the greater part of these thousands of more squatters are made up of professional beggars, who live off the county and charity, preferring to do this rather than work. These communities, it was said yesterday, are merely breeding places for disease and crime which in the past have been more or less fostered by the charity of the county.

It has cost this county not less than $200 per month and from that on up to $400 to feed and clothe and otherwise take care of the people living in "squatter towns," declared Chairman Avery of the county commissioners yesterday. "And the worst of it is that there seems to be no end to it. These people have found out they can obtain food from us so they just refuse to work, going on the idea that the county will not let them starve. When they get sick, they send for the county doctor and expect him to work all night with them."

"However, we have decided to put a halt to it and as our new county home and hospital is about completed we want the city to co-operate with us
